OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY
Key Contributions to Portfolio Outcome: Overall, the fund delivered a modestly positive return in April. Interest rate management positions, high yield debt, and global ex-US equity positions were the largest contributors to total return in April offset by covered calls, U.S. equity positions, and currency management positions. Main Portfolio Changes: We reduced duration given concerns that US government bonds may not serve their traditional purpose as a safe haven asset in light of the potential for increased deficit spending/issuance and a potentially less friendly foreign buyer base. We added Japanese currency exposure to serve as a hedge given the historical ballast that the Yen has offered in periods of global market volatility. We rotated some equity exposure from the US to Europe and the UK, where we see growth being less directly impacted by US tariffs. Later in the month as investors turned more negative, we added more equity exposure split between dividend expressions in the US and European, seeing an opportunity to capitalize on a market rebound. Finally, we added further to highly rated collateralized loan obligations and US high yield where valuations looked compelling. Positioning &amp; Outlook: "Liberation Day" turned into "Volatility Month" as the US President's announcement of reciprocal tariffs saw extreme reactions in stock and bond markets. The S&amp;P 500 saw exceptional intraday volatility, with April 10 marking five consecutive days with a &gt;6% intraday price range. Since the 1920s, only the peak of the GFC in October 2008 and the early pandemic turmoil in March 2020 had longer stretches of intraday price swings. Volatility was not just seen in equities. In early April the 10-year Treasury yield dropped below 4% before surging past 4.5%. The 30-year Treasury yield saw its largest weekly move higher since 1982. After days of uncertainty and retaliatory tariffs from China, President Trump announced a 90-day pause for non-retaliating countries, providing some relief but maintaining a minimum baseline 10% tariff on all countries. Many attributed the bond market volatility with forcing the administration's hand to announce the tariff pause, given the increased borrowing costs and their direct effect on the cost of US government borrowing. Our active strategy and defensive positioning ahead of 'Liberation Day' bolstered our performance in April. Shifting from US centric equities to international equities and tactically shorting the Russell 2000 via equity futures contributed positively, although overall equity returns were negative for the month. The path forward is likely to be marked by sustained uncertainty and varied performance across sectors, geographies, and asset classes. We believe this environment is ideal for a multi-asset solution that balances high-quality, volatility-resistant assets with tactical, dividend-paying equity investments.
